Comments from forest owners who have participated in the Forestry Shortcourse . . .

It gives you an opportunity to learn how to manage your forested land for your own specific use. It was an excellent program, where you not only learn how to manage your land, but you learn how to maintain the best genetic quality of your timber stand.

Dean Stevens, Sandpoint

It helped me organize my thoughts on forest management on our property . . . the wildlife side, the tree growing side. It gives you an in-depth look at forestry in our region . . . It really helped us to make a plan to manage our property.

Kim Duffy, Sandpoint

It helped me to organize and set a plan for the future, not just let things go as they may. It was definitely beneficial for developing a forestry plan for future timber harvest. I really liked the materials - I have loaned them out to friends!

Chris Messenbrink, Moyie Springs

It is imperative for all forest owners to go to a program like this, to make any intelligent decisions about their forest land . . . We need to do some sanitation cutting and this program really helped us make decisions.

Marianne Giddings, Sandpoint

FOREST STEWARDSHIP

Strengthening Forest Stewardship Skills

University of Idaho Extension

Forestry Shortcourse

Many Idaho forest landowners desire a better understanding of "what makes their forest tick" and how they can better manage their forest property. The Forestry Shortcourse will help you:

- understand basic principles of forest ecology and silviculture,
- apply that knowledge to your forest to meet your goals, and
- develop a written forest management plan for your property.

Course Outline

Session 1:
- Tree Identification
- Identifying Forest Management Goals
- Forest Management Planning

Session 2:
- Forest Ecology
- Forest Soil Stewardship

Session 3:
- Forest Insects & Disease

Session 4:
- Silvicultural Systems
- Thinning
- Reforestation, Pruning, & Fertility

Session 5:
- Forest Wildlife Habitat
- Forest Water Quality
- Recreation & Aesthetics
- Controlling Access

Session 6:
- Accomplishing Forest Management Tasks
- Keeping Records
- Forest Income & Property Tax Laws
- Idaho Forestry Laws
- Financial & Technical assistance

The program includes activities, presentations from several agencies' experts, discussion, videos, and other learning experiences designed to help you understand and apply basic forestry concepts.

In the process, you will be coached on how to write a plan that provides a long-term framework to help manage your forest. The plan will also help you qualify for forestry property tax categories, the American Tree Farm Program, and financial assistance for forest improvements, such as tree planting, non-commercial thinning, or pruning.
