Earn Your Master's Degree as a Wright Fellow

Apply by Feb. 1, 2013

The University of Idaho Wright Fellowship is a scholarship program designed to support up to 12 outstanding classroom teachers each year while they earn a master's degree in curriculum and instruction (non-thesis). The program provides an $11,232 scholarship.

The M.Ed. program is practical and research-driven, tailored to fit the schedules of busy teachers and provide them with the resources and flexibility to finish their studies within a four-semester time period. The next Wright Fellows program will begin during the summer 2013 session and will be complete in the summer 2014 session.

Program Fees and Costs*

- Fees: $11,232 (this is an estimated cost, as fees have not yet been set for 2013 and 2014)
- Books: Approximately $1,500
- Travel: Approximately $3,500, depending on your location
- Housing for two 6-week sessions on campus and 3 weekend stays per semester: Approximately $4,620
- Total fees and other costs: Approximately $20,852

*Students may also qualify for federal financial aid. Apply online at fafsa.com.

Instructions for the Wright Fellows Application:

Acceptance into this program requires a four-term commitment, admission to the Wright Fellows Program through the College of Education, and admission to the College of Graduate Studies.

1. Fill out the Wright Fellows Application Form.
2. Include a statement of intent or career objectives and why you want to be considered for the Wright Fellowship that is one to two pages. For guidelines see http://www.uidaho.edu/graduateadmissions/applynow/careerobjectives
3. Include a copy of your résumé.
4. Contact at least three persons who have firsthand knowledge of your scholastic and professional qualifications and ask them to write a letter of support for your Wright Fellowship application. Request that they place the letter in a sealed envelope, signed across the seal and returned to you. Mail the sealed envelope along with your other documents
5. Send two copies of official transcripts for ALL college work you have completed.
6. After you are notified of your acceptance as a Wright Fellow, apply to the College of Graduate Studies online at uidaho.edu/cogs by Feb. 25, 2013. You will be applying for a M.Ed. in Curriculum and Instruction (non- thesis). In your statement of career objectives, list your interest in the Wright Fellowship.
