Earn Your Master's Degree as a Wright Fellow

Apply by January 15, 2012

University of Idaho
College of Education

The University of Idaho Wright Fellowship is a scholarship program designed to support up to 10 outstanding classroom teachers each year while they earn a master's degree in curriculum and instruction (non-thesis). The program provides a $12,054 scholarship to cover the cost of program fees and a portion of books, travel, and housing.

The M.Ed. program is practical and research-driven, tailored to fit the schedules of busy teachers and provide them with the resources and flexibility to finish their studies within a four-semester time period. The next Wright Fellows program will begin during the summer 2012 session and will be complete in the summer 2013 session.

Program Fees and Costs*

- Fees: $10,461 (this is an estimated cost, as fees have not yet been set for 2012 and 13)
- Books: Approximately $1,500
- Travel: Approximately $3,500, depending on your location
- Housing for two six-week sessions on campus: Approximately $3,000
- Total fees and other costs: Approximately $18,461

*Students may also qualify for federal financial aid. Apply online at fafsa.com.

Instructions for the Wright Fellows Application:

Acceptance into this program requires a four-term commitment, admission to the Wright Fellows Program through the College of Education, and admission to the College of Graduate Studies.

1. Fill out the Wright Fellows Application Form.
2. Provide a letter of interest explaining why you want to be considered for the Wright Fellowship (one to two pages).
3. List your three most important professional goals and include a short narrative description of your career to date (one to two pages).
4. Include a Statement of Intent or Career Objectives (one to two pages).
5. Include a copy of your Resume.
6. Contact at least three persons who have firsthand knowledge of your scholastic and professional qualifications and ask them to write a letter of support for your Wright Fellowship application.
