

The top half of the image features a textured, golden-brown background. The bottom half shows a photograph of a large, Gothic-style university building with multiple towers and a green roof, set against a blue sky with scattered clouds. The building is partially obscured by lush green trees in the foreground.

Why should you become a member of the University of Idaho Retirees Association?

- Enhance lifelong relationships with each other and the University
- Enjoy social connections with former colleagues and new friends
- Support UIRA scholarships for students and student activities
- Attend academic lectures, civic presentations, cultural events, and athletic events
- Strengthen and promote ties between retirees in creative ways
- Support advocacy for University of Idaho retiree benefits, privileges, and communications
- Receive information pertinent to University of Idaho retirees

UIRA membership means you become part of a more than 500-member network of retired University employees, faculty, staff, and their family members who are committed to supporting the University of Idaho.

Benefits of UIRA Membership

By uniting in the University of Idaho Retirees Association, our members serve as liaisons to the University, work on common interests, such as medical benefits and insurance costs, and enjoy the social advantages of belonging to a dynamic retirees' group. UIRA sponsors a variety of social and educational events and activities.

Membership participation is the key to the association's success. UIRA represents all faculty and staff retirees and provides a means for continued involvement with University of Idaho programs and activities. UIRA actively meets with representatives of the University and other groups on matters relating to the well-being of retired persons.

UIRA is governed by volunteer board of directors, elected by UIRA general membership. The UI Office of Alumni Relations assists with the administration of UIRA.
