Vandals Make Their Mark: The world is a smaller place for the UI network

From Janet Hawkins Morris' ('87, BS Finance) trek in Antarctica to Steven Amstrup's ('75, MS Wildlife Management) award-winning polar bear research above the Arctic Circle in Alaska, the world is a smaller place for the Vandal network. Vandals have left an indelible mark around the globe. Read more.

Idaho Geologic Map Honored for Design, Quality Science

The comprehensive, rainbow-hued geologic map of Idaho released in 2012 has received top honors from the Association of American State Geologists. The Idaho Geological Survey map and its authors won the inaugural Charles J. Mankin Memorial Award, which recognizes state geological survey publications that stand out for their uniqueness, design, high-quality science, and relevance to scientific and societal issues.
