From Costa Rica to Kooskia, UI Students Dig Into Summer Research

UI students across disciplines spend their vacations gaining real-world experience – and opportunities are expanding as the university’s research awards increase in spite of national slumps. What did University of Idaho students do over their summer vacation? Read more.

The Future of Fire: Researchers study how climate change could affect Idaho, Great Basin landscapes

As thousands of acres burn in southern Idaho wildfires each year and are threatening the landscape, University of Idaho researchers are studying how these wildfires are affecting the arid ecosystems, how post-fire rehabilitation efforts are affecting ecosystem recovery and what this might mean in future climates. Read more.

Registration Open for Statewide Economic Summit

Registration is now open for the 2013 Idaho Economic Development Summit, hosted by the University of Idaho in collaboration with state economic development agencies and organizations. The summit will be Sept. 30-Oct. 1 at the Boise Centre convention center in downtown Boise. Read more.

UI Professor, Fisheries Expert Earns National Conservation Award

For more than 23 years Dennis Scarnecchia has researched some of the world’s oldest fish, including paddlefish and sturgeon. Now, he’s reeling in national recognition. His work at the University of Idaho will be rewarded in September, as he receives the Fisheries Management Sections Award of Excellence from the American Fisheries Societies at its annual meeting in Little Rock, Ark. UI’s MOSS Named Kellogg Community Engagement Award Winner, Competing for National Magrath Award

The McCall Outdoor Science School (MOSS), an outreach program of the University of Idaho College of Natural Resources, is the 2013 W.K. Kellogg Foundation West region winner for its success in creating a learning environment that promotes engagement and discovery in the community. Read more.

Second Annual Campus Safety Week to Focus on Bystander Intervention

The University of Idaho will host the second annual Campus Safety Week and Katy Benoit Safety Forum Sept. 16-19. The week will culminate with the “Take Back the Night” march on Thursday, Sept. 19. The program this year is built around the theme “I Got Your Back.” It is designed to raise student awareness of bystander intervention and high-risk behaviors and situations by providing practical intervention strategies and identifying a host of available resources. Read more.

Register Now to Learn Facebook Essentials

Register now for Professional Development and Learning's Facebook Essentials training. Other offerings this week include "Microsoft PowerPoint: Smart Shortcuts and Expert Secrets" and "The Supervisor's Guide to Giving Directions, Feedback and Criticism." Visit the PDL portal to register.

Fall Hours for the Statistical Consulting Center

The Statistical Consulting Center (SCC) provides assistance in the design of experiments and sample surveys, advice on statistical analyses, and expertise on recent developments in statistical research. Proper statistical design and analysis play a key role in producing quality research. The best time to seek statistical consulting is during the earliest stages of the research project, and before any data collection stage. Faculty members, staff, and graduate students from any discipline are welcome. Read more.
