NEA Grant to Bring Benny Golson, Eddie Palmieri and Sheila Jordan to the Lionel Hampton Jazz Festival

The University of Idaho's Lionel Hampton Jazz Festival received a $15,000 grant from the NEA Jazz Masters Live grant program to support the performances of Benny Golson, Eddie Palmieri and Sheila Jordan. The festival was one of six non-profit organizations to receive a grant to support performance and educational activities featuring NEA Jazz Masters, recipients of the nation's highest honor in jazz. LOST & FOUND: Professor Stacey Camp and her team of UI students uncover remnants of a forgotten past at WWII Labor Camp

Rusty cans, broken bottles, bits of porcelain, gaming tokens, and a dragon tail that serpentine around a piece of pottery. These are remnants of things discarded seven decades ago, but to anthropology professor Stacey Camp and her team of University of Idaho field school students, each item is a glimpse into the lives of the Japanese men interned during World War II at the Kooskia Relocation Camp. How to Think Like a Nuclear Control Room Operator: UI Human Factors students study man and machines at the Idaho National Laboratory

Some 10 shrill alarms were going off at once. The gauges indicated that the pressure in the pipes was still rising. In what looked and sounded like a nuclear plant control room, it appeared that there had been a steam generator tube rupture. Roger Lew and Thomas Ulrich — a pair of neuroscience graduate students at the University of Idaho — found themselves in charge of solving the problem. Read more.
