Foreign Credential Evaluation Services

The University of Idaho Admissions Offices evaluate all international credentials in-house for admission purposes. There are international admissions specialists in each admissions office who review and evaluate all international documents submitted in support of student applications. The time involved in the evaluation is dependent on many factors and varies from file to file.

There are instances when applicants would like to have their educational credentials evaluated by an outside authority. Reasons for outside review can include, but are not limited to, difficulty in the verification of document authenticity and the wish to expedite the processing and transfer credit evaluation of a file.

The four professional credential evaluation services from which the University of Idaho will accept evaluations are listed below.
