The Shades of Black Show 10th Anniversary at the University of Idaho

The most dynamic, entertaining, and intellectually potent cultural showcases in the region!

MOSCOW, IDAHO - On Saturday, February 9th, 2013 the most anticipated cultural showcase in the Pacific Northwest celebrates its 10 year anniversary at the University of Idaho. Considered to be one of the most dynamic, entertaining, and intellectually potent cultural showcases in the region, the Shades of Black Show continues to live up to its billing as a phenomenon.

The Shades of Black Show is a celebration of the different textures and dimensions of the cultural experience through the Performing Arts. Created in 2003 at the University of Idaho by Kwapi Vengesayi and making its debut in January of 2004, the Shades of Black Show has become a cultural phenomenon. Featuring individuals and students from Washington State University, Gonzaga University, Eastern Washington University, the University of Idaho, Boise State University and other campuses across the region, the Shades of Black Show has established itself as one of the most anticipated and entertaining cultural showcases in the pacific northwest.

Admission is free and the show will be held in University of Idaho Student Union Building (SUB) Ballroom with doors opening at 5p.m.
