First Semester Plan
English Version

Take a look at the example:

English Version Example: International Studies
1) The degree name is inserted in the first available field.
2) No additional information is needed, so the optional information field text has been deleted.
3) The appropriate English courses have been pre-entered in each column as determined by ACT or SAT scores.
4) The International Studies curriculum involves many courses with multiple options in the first semester. A short descriptor and space for information has been added for each of these courses.
5) Additional instructions can be added in blank fields.
6) The total number of credits has been added at the bottom of each column.
7) Up to five humanities and five social science courses have been checked as recommended. (Curricula not requiring humanities or social science courses can delete this page.)
8) Page three lists options and credit amounts for the courses on page one. This is a simple example, but you can substitute any supplemental information that is useful for your curriculum.

To Edit:

1) Open one of the three plans or one of the existing examples using Adobe Acrobat.
2) Modify or delete any text within brackets [].
   1. Make sure “highlight existing fields” is enabled.
   2. Edit to add the Degree name. Edit or delete [Optional Space for Information].
   3. Edit [Required Course (cr)] in each column to fit curricular requirements and credit numbers.
   4. Total the number of credits for the semester at the bottom of each column.
3) On page two, check up to five boxes each to recommend humanities or social sciences courses. Use the legend to determine which courses also satisfy American diversity or international requirements. Delete this page if it is not pertinent.
4) If your curriculum requires necessary supplemental information, such as lists of courses for slots that can be satisfied with multiple options, attach pertinent information on another page. (See FSP—International Studies Example-English Version for an example).
5) Save your changes.

2) If your list of courses includes a field that looks something like this “Anyword___________(# cr)” follow this sequence:
   1. Check the remaining pages in this document for more information or lists of classes.
   2. Follow any directions located at the bottom of your column.
   3. Ask your advisor for clarification.

3) Fill in any blanks and register for these courses. Please contact your advisor with questions or if you have AP or dual credit that may affect this schedule.
