Entrance Requirements
Students seeking admission to the PGA Golf Management Program must meet all University of Idaho admission requirements, and must have a golf handicap of 12.0 or better, as certified by a member of the PGA, a high school golf coach or current USGA handicap card.

Cost and Financial Aid
Moderate fees, coupled with programs of academic excellence, have accounted for the University of Idaho consistently being listed as one of America’s best colleges in publications such as U.S. News & World Report, Princeton Review, Newsweek and Barron’s. Kiplinger’s Personal Finance Magazine ranks the university as one of the top 100 public universities in the country in terms of the quality of the undergraduate program and cost. The University of Idaho offers more than $60 million in scholarships, grants, low-interest student loans, work-study and internship opportunities to its students. In addition, guaranteed and renewable scholarship programs exist for both resident and non-resident students.

College of Business and Economics

Recognized as a leader in business education, the University of Idaho’s College of Business and Economics (CBE) prepares graduates to join either the business world or leading graduate business programs — ready to “hit the ground running.” Our award winning Integrated Business Curriculum (IBC) produces skilled, innovative thinkers who can make a positive impact today and become valued business leaders in the future. Introduced in 1994, the uniquely designed IBC undergraduate program provides balanced and real-world, hands-on experience in all functional business disciplines and in 2009 was recognized as a “best practice” in undergrad business education by the premier accrediting agency AACSB.

Recognition of IBC’s excellence includes the Award for Innovative and Creative Education from the Academy of Educational Leadership. The program has been specifically designed to meet employers’ demands for students who understand the big picture, as well as the functional responsibilities of their respective positions. As a result, University of Idaho business students are consistently sought by corporations throughout the United States and the world to fill key business, management and leadership positions.
