

University of Idaho

College of Natural Resources

Fish & Wildlife Sciences

Spring 2017 Friday Seminar Series

February 3rd – Leandro Esteban Miranda, Mississippi St. Univ.

"Treasures of the Mississippi Alluvial Valley"

February 10th – Scott Mills, University of Montana

"How seasonal camouflage hides animals while revealing mysteries of climate change"

February 24th – William Kendall, Colorado State University

"A tale of two turtles: survival and reproduction of sea turtles in the Caribbean Sea from long-term mark-recapture studies"

March 24th – Dana Infante, Michigan State

"Assessing stream fish habitats across large regions: Lessons learned and future directions."

March 31st – Robin Naidoo, Lead Wildlife Scientist of the World Wildlife Fund, U.S.

"Ecological and socioeconomic aspects of large-scale conservation in southern Africa"

April 21st – Angela Strecker, Portland State University

"Understanding the ecological effects of Increased connectivity and rapid environmental change in lakes and ponds of the Columbia Plateau"

April 28th – Josh Millspaugh, University of Montana

"Consumption and Conservation: New Views on Old Data and Persistent Problems "

Fridays 1:30-2:20pm

College of Natural Resources (CNR) Room 10