College of Education
Courses are credentialed and will develop educators aligned with the College of Education’s conceptual CARE framework:
- Cultural Proficiency;
- Assessment, Teaching, and Learning;
- Reflective Scholarship and Practice; and
- Engagement in Community Building and Partnerships.
Courses within the teacher education program are aligned with these tenets in mind.

The purpose of this program is to recruit, prepare, certify, and place culturally responsive American Indian educators into teaching positions in schools with high populations of Native American students.

Research shows that Native American students in K-12 perform better with teachers who have the cultural competencies to connect with their students’ cultural and linguistic needs.

INDIGENOUS EDUCATION FOCUS
