Native American Law Emphasis
Elective Courses for Course Tracks
UPDATED SPRING 2012

Required Native American Law Curriculum Courses (6 credits):
From the Native American Law curriculum, students must take the course:
Native American Law (3 Credits), Law 949 and one additional course in the Native American Law Curriculum:

- Native American Natural Resources Law (3 Credits), Law 979
- Tribal Nation Economics and Law (3 Credits), Law 928.

Elective Courses for Native American Law Emphasis Course Tracks (6 credits):
Students must take two or more courses from one of the following course tracks offered regularly by the University of Idaho College of Law. The four course tracks are: Economic Development, Family Law, Governance, and Natural Resources Management.

One of the two courses may be substituted with a course related to the selected course track offered by the graduate programs of the University of Idaho or Washington State University. A law student may only take one course from a graduate program to count towards the Native American Law Emphasis. Pre-approval of the course track is required by the Native American Law Emphasis Advisor.

Students may design an individualized course track with the pre-approval of the Native American Law Emphasis Advisor. (6 credits)
