Foreign Credential Evaluation Services

The University of Idaho Admissions Office evaluates international credentials in-house for admission purposes. The time involved in the evaluation is dependent on many factors and varies from file to file.

There are instances when the Admissions Office deems a professional evaluation necessary as part of the application process. Reasons for outside review can include, but are not limited to, difficulty in the verification of document authenticity or institution recognition and the wish to expedite the processing and transfer credit evaluation of a file.

The five professional credential evaluation services from which the University of Idaho will accept evaluations are listed below. If you wish to use another service, please contact us first to see if the agency you would like to use is acceptable.
