

University of Idaho

The University of Idaho welcomes and respects all people. Diversity and inclusion are the core of our community and we embrace them as our guiding principles.

The University of Idaho acknowledge and supports the principle that everyone is a unique person who possesses diverse qualities and traits, and who interacts with diverse others within a larger civil society.

We seek to protect and promote a respectful and civil learning environment for the discussion of the concepts and the development of practical skills associated with diversity and inclusion.

As a place of learning and training, the University adheres to the standards of ethical and civil diversity and of inclusive discourse and action within our classrooms, offices, hallways, student organizations and gathering places.

The University community values people of diverse cultures, classes, races, ethnicities, sexes, gender identities, mental and/or physical abilities, citizenship, nationalities, sexual orientations, religious backgrounds, ages, epistemologies, academic disciplines, veteran status, life experiences, and identities. As a living document this list is intended to be additive as we become a more inclusive learning community.

This statement has been reviewed and supported by the Associated Students University of Idaho, UNITY, Graduate and Professional Student Association, President's Council on Diversity and Inclusion, Student Bar Association, Faculty Senate, and Staff Council.
