

Connor McCleskey is a Staff Attorney at the Parole Revocation Defense Unit of The Legal Aid Society in New York City. Previously, he worked as a Legal Associate and Justice Catalyst Fellow at Worth Rises, creating resources for incarcerated people to advocate for prison phone justice. During law school, he served as an Executive Editor of Georgetown Law Journal's Annual Review of Criminal Procedure and participated in the Criminal Defense & Prisoner Advocacy Clinic. Connor graduated with a B.A. from Oberlin College and a J.D. from Georgetown University Law Center.