

Assignment 1:

Reading:

Principles of Legal Research (Concise Hornbook Series), (2nd ed., West), by Kent Olson.

The text is available to you for free, via the West Study Aids link on the Law Library's Research Databases webpage, <https://libguides.law.uidaho.edu/az.php>. Additional readings may, and probably will, be assigned at other times throughout the semester; students will be notified promptly should this occur. Any additional readings will be made available to the student.

For your first class, please read the introduction to Chapter 1 and sections 1.1 and 1.2 in the Olson textbook.

Daily Assignment for May 26 (Due by class May 27)

As we discussed in class, you will be responsible for a 6-8 minute, 20 slide presentation on some topic related to the course material. Please review the syllabus and see if you can identify any topics that you might be interested on presenting on over the course of the class. This does not need to be the topic that you ultimately choose, and it doesn't have to be well-defined- I just need to know that you've reviewed the syllabus and are thinking about parts of the material that might interest you. If you have thoughts on why a topic interests you or your selection process, those would also be welcome. Please submit at least one, but hopefully closer to 3-5 ideas by the beginning of our second class.
