

The Hemlock Papers

Call For Papers

The Hemlock from the University of Idaho is in search of original philosophical papers authored by current undergraduates. Selected papers will appear in the journal's next volume.

Extended
Deadline:
January 24th

The Hemlock's call for papers is on topics philosophical in nature that deeply engage with principles, ideas, and concepts from the core of this field. We aim to publish essays that can be read and understood by a general educated audience. Papers must be philosophical in nature and self standing. All submissions will be peer-reviewed in anonymity. Acceptance for publication will be based on the following criteria: creativity, originality, pertinence, quality, and depth. The Hemlock would appreciate that only one paper be submitted per applicant.

Submission Procedures:

- Word count: 750-3000
- Any Citations are in a standard format, Ex. Chicago, MLA, etc. (only if applicable)
- Strongly suggest footnotes or end notes
- Double spaced
- Acceptable Fonts: Times New Roman
- Font size: 12
- Papers will be peer-reviewed anonymously (submit manuscripts with a title page including affiliation, email, and title. Please remove any identifiers from the main text of the paper that would suggest its author.)
- Papers should be sent as an attachment to barz9834@vandals.uidaho.edu in a Microsoft Word (.doc/.docx) or Adobe PDF format.
- Any questions or concerns can be addressed to barz9834@vandals.uidaho.edu (Skyler Barzee , Co-Editor-in-Chief) or john8369@vandals.uidaho.edu (Clara Johnson, Co-Editor-in-Chief)
